Taxes to be Reduced

In a recent address, delivered before the State Bankers' Association of Virginia Beach, Gov. Byrd stated that if the budget was revised at the 1928 session of the General Assembly in accordance with the recommendations eliminating all useless employees and with the changes, reforms and economies already effected, that this would permit of a reduction in the State tax, after providing for the essential needs of the several State agencies of not less than $750,000 annually. This, the governor explained, will be in addition to the large tax reduction made possible this year by reason of the operation of the new tax plan. Governor Byrd emphasized that taxes can be reduced in three ways without retarding the progress of the State. He enumerated these ways as follows:

1. By increasing the purchasing power of the taxpayer's dollar by added efficiency of governmental operation.

2. By compelling those who have heretofore failed to pay their proper share of the burden of taxation to pay a propotionate share.

3. By creating new taxable values by inviting desirable new residents and new industries into the State.

Governor Byrd also says that he will shortly issue a statement showing in detail the tax reduction effective in the fall of this year to the farmers and owners of land and tangible personal property.

A recent statement from Washington carried by the Associated Press indicates that real estate taxes in Virginia are very low in comparison with other parts of the United States.

Board of Supervisors

Board of Supervisors was in session yesterday and among the matters paid by the expensive J. A. Hannah matter which has been litigated for nearly six years, costing all parties many times the amount finally awarded Mr. Hannah. It just took a county warrant of $900 to pay Hannah and the cost of the last trial.

Mr and Mrs. J. J. Clarke and Mrs. O. R. Turnes attended District conference in Bedford this week.

SECRET TRAP GUARDS BRITISH CROWN GEMS

Jewel Room Defies Ingenuity of Thieves.

London.—The crown jewels of England, valued at tens of millions of dollars, have been placed under stricter guard since visiting American gunmen were credited with participating in a series of gigantic jewel robberies recently.

The jewels, spread out in glittering array, are seen by thousands of American tourists every year in the Tower of London. They simply pay their sixpence, walk by two guards attired like the familiar portraits of Henry VIII, and stand and gush over the jewels as long as they like. Then they rush out to send picture post cards back to Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Appear to Be Unguarded.

Apparently they are under very little supervision and many are heard to remark how easy it would be to break the glass and help one's self to a couple of million-dollar crowns or a scepter or two. But the last serious attempt to raid the crown jewels was made by Colonel Blood in 1671 and he never recovered.

The jewel room in the Tower of London is as nearly burglar-proof as human ingenuity can devise. The octagonal glass jewel case in which the jewels are stored is protected by slender steel bars five inches apart and looks commonplace enough. It stands in the center of the jewel room and is about ten feet high. The jewels are arranged artistically on white satin tiers.

Any attempt, however, to tamper with the case would set alarm bells ringing all over the tower, while the outer gates of the fortress, started by William the Conqueror, would automatically clang shut. At the same instant the occupants of the jewel room would find themselves imprisoned by the mechanical closing of the doors, which would convert the jewel room into a large penitentiary cell. Steel shutters, ordinarily hidden from view, would automatically descend over the glass case containing the jewels, converting it into a gigantic eight-sided safe.

Before the would-be burglar knew what was happening the chances are he would find himself in Scotland Yard.

Famous Jewels in Collection.

Among other jewels the case contains:

The crown of England, made for Charles II.

The king's state crown made for Queen Victoria's coronation, containing a gigantic ruby given to the Black Prince and worn by Henry V at Agincourt; a portion of the Cullinan diamond presented to Edward VII by Transvaal, the Stuart "sapphire" and 2,000 smaller diamonds of only a few carats each.

The imperial state crown, made for King George V for the Delhi durbar, containing a large emerald and more than 6,000 diamonds.

Queen Mary's state crown, containing the famous Kohinoor diamond, presented to Queen Victoria by the East India company, and the two other portions of the Cullinan diamond.

The royal scepter, which has the largest cut diamond in the world for a knob.

When his majesty needs any of these trinkets they are taken from the Tower of London to Buckingham palace by an ordinary automobile, without any special precautions other than secrecy.

PIONEERS' TRAILS TRACED OVER U. S.

Magnitude of a Journey Through Wilds Shown.

Denver, Colo.—The courses traveled by the pioneers of the West are much better known by students today than by those hardy adventurers.

This is the result of five years spent by Prof. Archer Butler Hulbert in mapping the trails. He is with the Stewart Commission on Western History at Colorado college, Colorado Springs.

The Oregon, Santa Fe and Mormon trails, the route of the pony express, those lines of communication made famous by Kit Carson, John C. Fremont, Buffalo Bill, Jim Bridger and others, have been traced and mapped in terms of section, township and range.

Pony Express Is Traced.

The trek of the overland mail wagon trains, the westward push of the pony express and its allied caravans, the routes they traversed, the places where they stopped, now are definitely known for the first time.

A personal map of the roads of Fremont, Carson and the "Forty-niners" shows lines following the shadow cast today by the six-mail planes as they wing their way across the continent. The landing places usually are near points made famous a century ago by overland caravans.

"We, in imagination," declares Professor Hulbert, "one swings the old Oregon trail or the Santa Fe trail eastward from Independence, Mo., instead of westward, he will find a clearer idea of the length of the journey which the covered caravans made from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast. Going east on the Oregon trail, one would cross South Pass in northwestern Pennsylvania and find that Portland, Ore., was in Nova Scotia. Going east on the Santa Fe trail, one would find that Santa Fe was in the Tennessee mountains and that Los Angeles was 490 miles beyond Cape Hatteras in the Atlantic ocean.

Shows Magnitude of Trip.

"With this rearrangement of the routes one can readily grasp the magnitude of the trips undertaken by those intrepid pioneers who carried civilization into the wilds beyond the Ohio river."

The work of Professor Hulbert was accomplished through the co-operation of the American Geographical society, the Library of Congress, Harvard, Yale and other universities. The results have been compiled into five volumes, containing some 275 maps showing about 7,000 miles of trails in more than 2,300 townships in twelve western states.

The work is to be followed by the compiling and editing of journals and diaries of the pioneers, which will form a documentary history of the West from the war of 1812 to the completion of the Union Pacific railroad.

Deaf Can Hear Through Finger Tips, Is Claim

Northampton, Mass.—The discovery that the ability of the human skin to detect rapid vibrations is much greater than has previously been supposed has been made here by Dr. Robert H. Gault, director of the vibro-tactile research laboratory of Smith college. Doctor Gault has been engaged for several years in experiments to enable the deaf to hear through their finger tips by touching a telephone receiver.

Previously scientists have supposed that a vibration faster than 1,000 times a second was too fast to be detected by the skin. According to Doctor Gault, however, these touch organs can detect vibrations as fast as 2,700 a second. Though many of the vibrations of the voice are more rapid than this, "oo," for instance, as pronounced by the average male voice being about 2,700 a second, and "ah" 3,682, Doctor Gault states that if the skin can receive vibrations as rapid as 2,700, it is amply sensitive to understand speech.

Indian Boys and Girls Active in Farm Clubs

Washington.—More than 5,500 Indian boys and girls have been enrolled during the last year in juvenile agricultural clubs, statistics at the Interior department show.

Last year Indian club members raised products valued at $43,702, including corn, potatoes, other vegetables, poultry and farm animals Canning clubs and sewing circles are credited with splendid work.

Among those winning high honors in the corn club was Hannah High Hawk, a twelve-year-old full-blood Sioux girl of the Cheyenne river reservation in South Dakota. She was awarded a free trip to the National Corn congress.

Use of American Matches Under Ban in Peru

New York.—Lighting an American match in Peru may be the cause of a $20 fine. Such is the news brought back by some sadder but wiser Americans. Several passengers on the lines Essequibo said that not until they were arrested did they learn that a Swedish match company has a monopoly on the sale of matches in that country and that all other matches are highly dutiable, and, if brought in without duty, cost their owners $20.

W. G. Shriever

Mr. Schriever died in N. Y., and his body was sent to the home of Mrs. A. O. Blackwell in Lynchburg, from which place it will be brought to Appomattox and interred in the family burying ground at the home of C. B. Martin's. Deceased married Miss Izzie Martin of this place, and was 38 years of age. Burial this evening.

E. J. Coleman

Edward Jackson Coleman, 55 years of age died Saturday in Lynchburg. He was born in Appomattox county but had resided in Lynchburg for many years and was employed as mail clerk in the local post office. He was a member of College Hill Baptist Church. Surviving are the wife and six children who are Mrs. B. J. Mitchell. R. J., A. J., J. E. and T. B. Coleman, all resident in Lynchburg; one brother, W. L. Coleman, and one sister, Mrs. J. W. Harris, both resident in Appomattox. The funeral services were held Monday and burial in Spring Hill cemetery.

David Womack

This confederate soldier fell asleep in Jesus on Monday, July 11th, in his 87 year of age. He was a patient sufferer for years, but bore his sufferings with christian fortitude. Mr Womack was a faithful and devoted member of Spring Creek Baptist church for over fifty years and was one of the deacons. He was unexcelled as a christian character and a true soldier of the cross. He leaves in his family circle three sons, W. L. Womack, S. J. Womack, Henry N Womack, and two daughters, Mrs. Mattie Robertson and Mrs. Elmer Gibson. We extend to the children our most heartfelt sympathy and trust that the exemplary character of their father will be a guiding star in their lives, leading them nobler and better lives and finally to the great reunion beyond.

Hunter Walker

Early Thursday morning, July 7, 1927, the beautiful spirit of Hunter Walker departed heavenward.

His death came as a shock to his many friends as they did not realize his critical condition. He was the only son of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Walker, 22 years of age. Early in life Hunter gave his heart to God and united with the Evergreen Methodist Church.

His home-going in youth, with so much to live for and cheer him, surrounded by loved ones who needed him impresses us with a sense of mystery, but we know and feel that God doeth all things well. Those who mourn for him in the home circle are his parents, two sisters, Mrs. John Hatch, of Norfolk and Mrs. Charles Paris, of Roanoke.

Hunter was laid to rest in the Presbyterian church yard on Friday afternoon where a vast throng of people came to pay him the last tribute of love and respect. The floral designs were numerous and beautiful. Rev. W. G. Boggs assisted by Rev. H. M. Wilson, and Rev. W. B. Duling conducted the burial service. We extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy and commend them to Him, who has promised never to leave or forsake them and who is able to sustain them in this great sorrow.
